

sphere trending™

we think outside the circle™

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 22, 2008

CABOOM East: Cisco Brothers

We're currently covering the High Point Markets in North Carolina and while the mood here is a little subdued and the over all attendance down a bit, there are a few bright spots. Notably, CABOOM East - a design show for sustainable products, up and coming designers and Cisco Brothers - located a shuttle van's distance from the main downtown area.

Cisco Brothers took a gamble and moved their showroom into an empty mill building, which they working on achieving LEED certification for, and set up shop. Their efforts were well worth it as their commitment to sustainable furniture pieces, organic fabrics, reclaimed woods and innovative designs were one of our highlights of market. Softened color palettes, smaller sized pieces and comforting shapes were a strong story for them, so look for more posts on Cisco Brothers and a detailed post on the innovated at CABOOM East in the next few days. Until there, we are heading back to market looking for more inspiration to share.

